1839 $10 Gold Coin, Head of 1838

large letters, scarce transitional head variety, in red oak presentation box, NGC determined "AU details, damaged", presumably in reference to the rim chatter and reverse scratch

Provenance: found by a metal detectorist along Carmel Beach, California circa 2006 prior to encapsulation; Private Collection

Estimate: $5,000 - $7,000

An argument can be made that the "head of 1838" variety in the ten dollar gold series should constitute a separate type from the later coronet Liberty design. Christian Gobrecht, the designer for both, produced a more delicate head sculpt for this earlier type. Draped hair over her ear and pronounced curvature between shoulder and bust are the two most noticeable differences.
